Report of Officers.

The first day of the twenty-first session of the Grand Lodge of Utah was devoted entirely to routine business Reports were received from the various officers and referred to the proper committees. The remainder of the session was devoted to the discussion of legislative measures. This morning the election of officers will take place. No new candidates have come forward since the announcement in The Trib-une yesterday morning. Messrs, McNitt and Beatle are being vigorously sup-ported by their friends for the office of grand vice chancellor and the result annot be foretold.

The reports received from all parts of the State show that the order has had a prosperous year, although the labor troubles in Carbon county have been a serious handicap in that section members of a very desirable character are coming into other lodges and many ew charters will probably be issued in Picture Saved Monkey.

A. L. M. Gottschalk the American Consul at Gusyaquil. Ecuador, tells a good story about the difficulties he has had to keep a menkey on the consulate premises because of the depredations of the boaconstrictors. The big reptiles have a falling for menkeys, and these agile little pets must keep a constant lockout for them. If Jocko drops into a doze he is likely to "wake up dead."

On the occasion with which the story deals a menkey's life was saved by the picture of an American eagle. The consulate sign all the world over is a fine reproduction of the king of birds, in full color, and with outspread wings. A new sign had just been received and was waiting on a chair inside the room. A big boa constrictor chased the house monkey across the yard and through the open window. He was in the corner, quaking with fear, and very near to death's door, when his pursuer confronted the picture of the eagle in its menacing attitude. A snake fears eagles even more than it craves monkeys, and that particular reptile turned tail and went out of the window as quickly as it the devil was after it. That monkey was a smart monkey, and now, whenever it wants to take a napit goes to toost over the picture of the eagle.—Mexican Heraid. Thefts From Hotels.

A certain hotel keeper in this city says that the people have no idea of the small depredations that are committed by guests, most of whom are people with money enough of their own to refrain. He declares that not long ago he bought 700 yards of toweling for his rooms, and before he had time to learn whether or not the rooms had been supplied, the whole outfit was gone. "They were drummers and women and all kinds of people who took them," said he, "and probably they did not think it was stealing to take things away from a botel. As to downright theft from rooms, or bilking in the matter of meals, there is much less of it in the hotels than you would suppose; but, Lor, how they will crib the soap and linen and spoons!"—Nashingion Times.
